BRANCHES

In the context of supermarkets, branches don't actually refer to physical sections within the store itself.

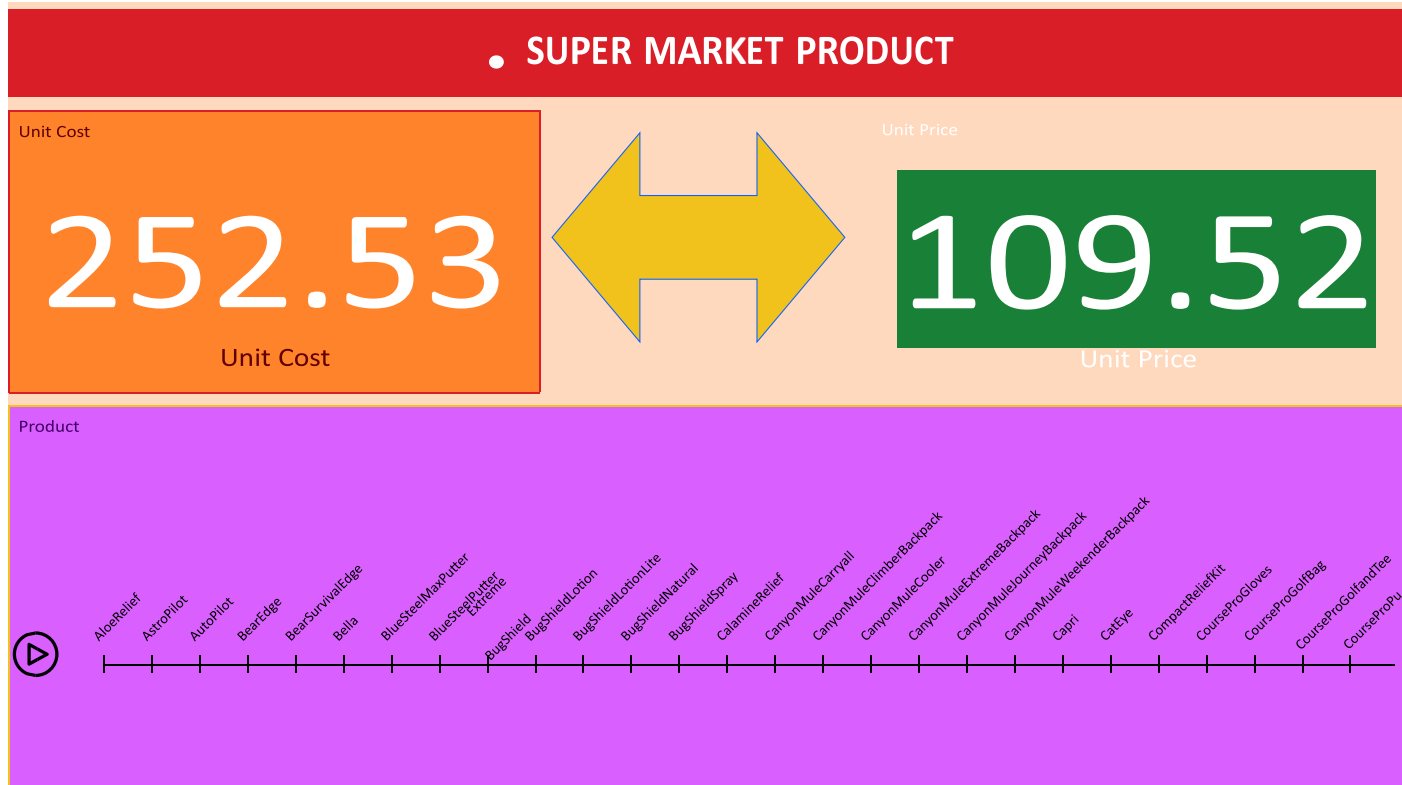

Supermarkets typically have departments for different product categories (produce, bakery, meat, etc.), but these wouldn't be called branches.

RETAILERS

- Retailer: This is a business that sells products directly to consumers, rather than to other businesses.

PRODUCT

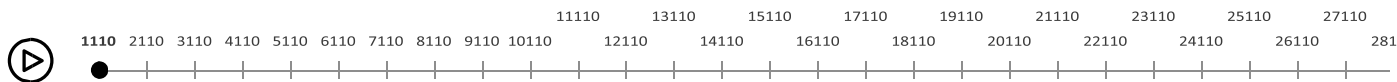

Supermarket products are the wide variety of food, beverages, and household goods that you can find in a supermarket.

REVENUE

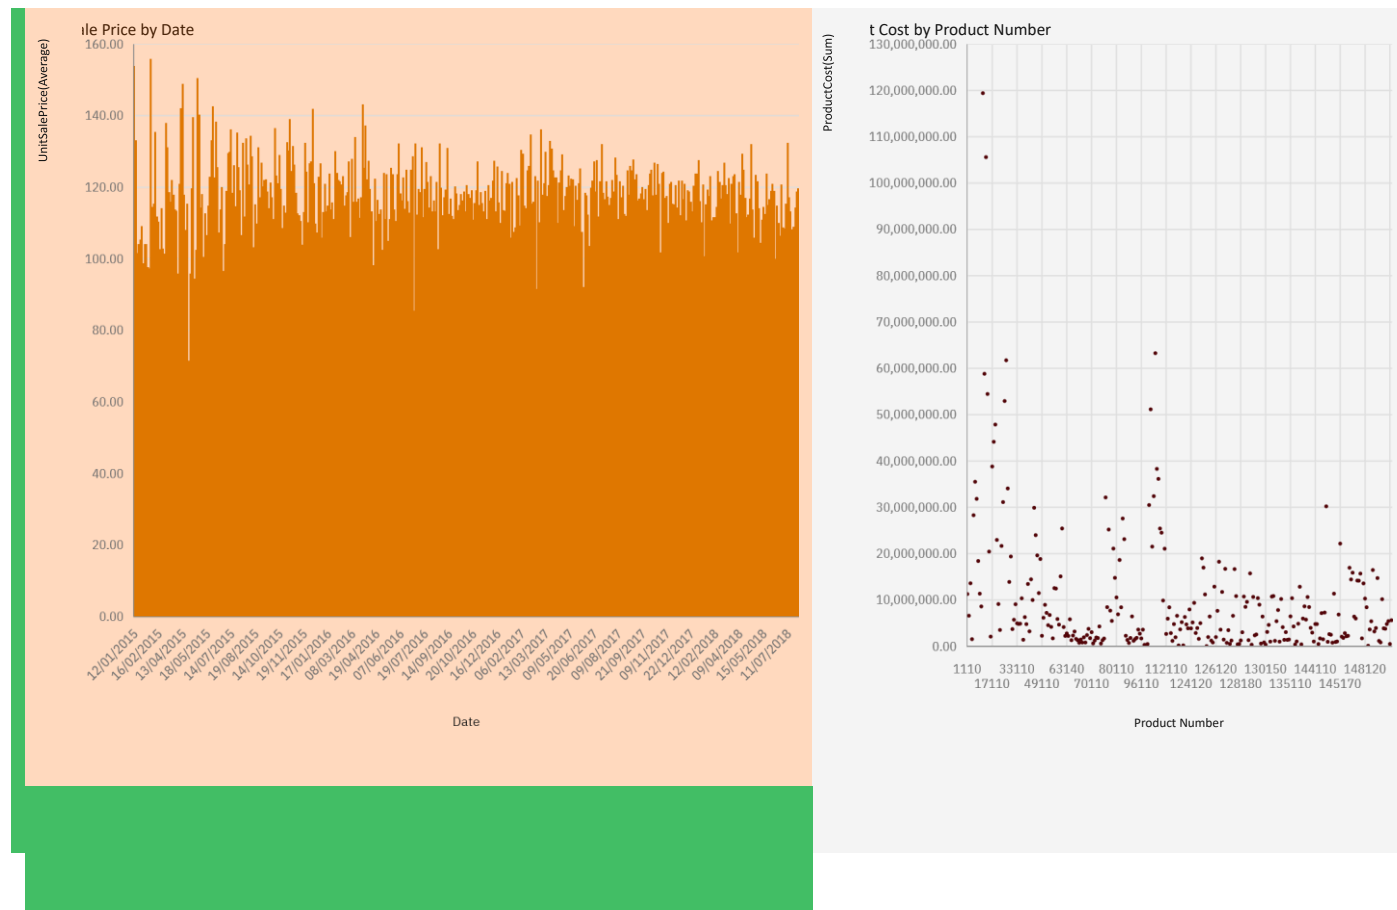

Product Number

In the world of business and finance, revenue refers to the total income generated by the sale of goods and services related to a company's core operations.
